Introduction

This is the Privacy Statement of Graydon Belgium NV (hereinafter: 'Graydon' or 'we'). This privacy statement is applicable to the processing referenced in this statement as well as all Graydon services.

This privacy statement is applicable to the following categories of stakeholders:

- Prospects
- Clients
- Partners
- Website visitors
- Visitors of our office buildings
- Suppliers
- Job applicants

This Privacy Statement offers you clarification about how we process and handle your personal data.

Graydon: we stand for doing business safely

As you may know, Graydon is a business information specialist. We have over 130 years of experience with the supply of reliable business information to companies and governments. Graydon believes that transparency strengthens trust between business partners. If organisations have a clear picture of the opportunities available and the risks they may face, collaboration will arise, agreements will be made, and ideas will become reality.

Our mission is to filter large quantities of data that is available from various sources, in order to obtain and offer useful, but more importantly reliable, business information about all companies in the Netherlands, for the purpose of generating more trust between trade partners and contributing to efficient trade and economic traffic. Data about you and your company is also an important part of this. Based on the information from various sources, we generate valuable financial, and commercial business insights, which enable our clients to take even better business decisions.

This Privacy Statement was most recently updated on: 5/08/2022.

1. Who is the data controller for your personal data?

Graydon is the controller with regard to your personal data. This means that we have certain legal duties and responsibilities for our processing activities. This Privacy Statement is to inform you about how we fulfil our duties and responsibilities.

2. What personal data does Graydon collect?

Graydon processes information, including personal data of the parties mentioned in the Introduction. Curious about which personal data Graydon processes about you?

Please check our table at the bottom of this document for further clarification.

3. How does Graydon obtain your personal data?

Graydon collects personal data in a number of different ways. We obtain personal data when offering and performing our services, when you become our supplier (for example, we process contracts and invoices which may contain your contact details), or when you otherwise communicate with us. Furthermore, personal data may be collected when you visit our website, register for an event, subscribe to our newsletter, or apply for a job with us.

4. For what purposes and on what legal basis does Graydon process personal data?

Graydon processes information for various purposes, such as:

- Client support

We use your personal data to provide our services to you and to optimise those services (for example when you have questions or specific points of attention that require further elaboration).

Legal basis: being able to perform or implement our agreement with you as a client.

- Marketing and sales activities

Graydon likes to inform prospects and clients about offers, innovations and other relevant content relevant to the professional field with regard to our services, in accordance with the regulations that apply to this, or because you have given us your consent for this. We can do this by telephone, email, newsletters, or in person. Of course, you always retain the right to revoke your consent at any time.

Legal basis: your consent or our legitimate interest to inform you about our services.

- Managing our websites

We process your personal data on our websites to improve the experience for visitors of our websites as well as our services.

Legal basis: our legitimate interest to improve the quality of our services, including our websites.

- Reporting, analytical and scientific purposes

Your personal data may be used for reporting and analysis purposes to improve our services and to be able to align them to the needs of our clients.

For this purpose, you may receive an invitation to participate in a client panel. Of course, you are always free to accept such invitations and such invitations will include an option to opt out of invitations for future studies.

Your anonymised data can also be used by our research department for benchmarking purposes and statistical analyses.

Legal basis: our legitimate interest to improve our services, for example through gaining insight into the geographical distribution of our clients, and to be able to continually safeguard the quality of our services.

- Administrative purposes

In our administration, for the purpose of for example the correct performance of invoicing, the aforementioned personal data will be updated to keep it as current as possible. In addition, personal data will be processed so that your agreement with us (as a client or supplier) can be managed as best as possible and to optimise internal processes for the performance of your agreement.

Legal basis: our legitimate interest to keep our administration accurate and up to date.

- Complaint and dispute resolution

Despite our efforts to offer you the best possible service, it can happen that you are dissatisfied about our services and wish to file a complaint. In that event, the personal data we have about you may be used to achieve the best possible resolution of your complaint.

Legal basis: our legitimate interest to optimise our services, including the processing of complaints.

- Recruitment and selection

For the recruitment and selection of new employees, we process personal data for potential candidates to assess the suitability of a candidate and to comply with applicable laws and regulations.

If you are a candidate for an internal vacancy at our company, we will temporarily include your data in our database to support the recruitment and selection process.

Legal basis: the performance of the agreement (precontractual agreements) with the applicant and the necessity to comply with legal requirements.

Please check our table at the bottom of this document for further clarification.

5. Does Graydon share personal data with other parties?

When you use our services or websites, some personal data may be shared with third parties.

Clients, partners, suppliers, website users:

- Affiliated enterprises, to the extent that such is legally required and/or necessary for the performance of the agreement.

- External service providers (consultants, but also parties who supply external software/tools)
- Legal professionals (in the event of a dispute) such as debt collection agencies, bailiffs and/or lawyers

Applicants:

- References provided in the cover letter or CV, to verify the competencies of an applicant

6. Is any personal data being transferred to countries outside of the European Economic Area?

Graydon only provides personal data to a few clients outside of the European Economic Area (hereinafter: 'EEA') if, according to the European Commission, the country has an adequate level of data protection in place or if additional precautions have been implemented (standard contract terms) with these parties to ensure that your personal data is being protected in accordance with the GDPR standards.

7. How does Graydon protect your personal data?

The protection of the privacy and confidentiality of your personal data is very important to Graydon, as such Graydon ensures adequate technical and organisational measures are in place to secure personal data against very form of illegitimate processing, loss, and misuse.

Graydon works with a quality management system which guarantees a consistent service level that complies with the client's requirements and applicable law and regulations.

8. How long does Graydon store your personal data?

Graydon stores your personal data no longer than necessary for fulfilling the purposes set out in this Privacy Statement, unless Graydon is required to retain your personal data to comply with legal requirements imposed on Graydon.

To ensure that your personal data is not stored any longer than necessary for the purposes set out in this statement, Graydon maintains a strict retention policy.

However, it can happen that we need to keep your personal data for longer, because it is required for compliance with a legal requirement imposed on us. Where our accountancy and bookkeeping are concerned, for example, we are requirement to retain invoices for a period of at least 7 years from the end of a financial year. If there is a dispute (to be anticipated) or a (legal) procedure, we are also entitled to retain your personal data for a longer period of time. Data concerning an applicant is retained for a maximum of 4 weeks after the end of the application procedure, unless you give your consent for us to retain the information for 1 year. If you would like further clarification about the retention periods applied by Graydon, please contact us.

9. What rights do you have with regard to your personal data?

As a data subject, you have several rights, which you can exercise within the framework of our processing of your data:

- right of access: you can ask Graydon to provide you with the personal data that is being stored by Graydon;
- right of correction and right of removal: if the information contains errors, is incomplete, or is not relevant for the purpose for which it is processed, or otherwise conflicts with the legal requirement, you can request that Graydon corrects, supplements, or removes that personal data;
- right of limitation of processing: to limit the processing of your personal data.
- right of objection: objecting against the processing of your personal data; when your personal data is being used for direct marketing, you may object at any time against that processing. You also have the right to object against profiling.
- right of transferability of data: the right to have your personal data transferred to another supplier that provides the same service. Because other suppliers make use of the same public sources, Graydon will not transfer that data.]

Graydon makes every effort to ensure that your personal data is correct and up to date. If you wish to exercise your rights, you can submit a request with motivation of your interests to Graydon. You can send your request to Graydon: via e-mail: gdpr@graydon.be or by post to: Graydon Belgium NV, Uitbreidingstraat 84/b1, 2600 in Antwerp. For us to be able to identify you, we kindly request that you include a copy of your identity document. You may redact your national register number (rijksregisternummer) and picture on that copy. We will respond to your request within one month.

10. Filing a complaint with the Gegevensbeschermingsautoriteit (GBA)

Your contentment is important to us. But even when we make every effort to achieve this, you may be dissatisfied. You can file a claim with the Belgian authority, the Gegevensbeschermingsautoriteit, if your complaint concerns the protection of your personal data. You can do this via:

<https://www.gegevensbeschermingsautoriteit.be/burger/acties/klacht-indienen>

11. Cookies

The Graydon website uses cookies. For more information, please refer to our Cookie Statement.
